Servettes Sponsor "Hop"

This newly organized club of girls has truly kept up to their name, the Servettes. For this quarter they have assisted in the school play "Brother Goose" by selling tickets, helping with the make-up, decorations and refreshments.

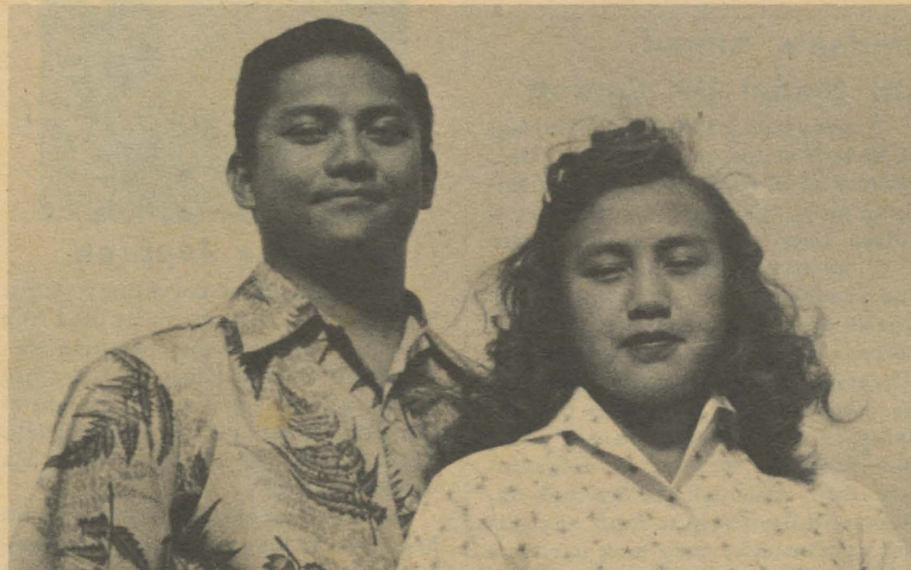

Their greatest achievement was their "Bunny Hop". It was held in the unfinished Laie Recreational Hall on April 19, at 9:00 p.m. The decorations were super; thanks go to the chairman Kanani Moikeha and her committee. In one corner of the building was a huge, pink and black bunny made out of wire, link napkins and black crepe paper, and big colored eggs. The refreshments were served all during the dance. Jeanette Kochi headed the refreshment committee and the tid-bits were swell. Above all this were colored lights and colored paper rings which formed streamers from one side to the other.

The music was rendered by famous bands on record. During the intermission, the Labor Missionaries entertained the students and guests with vocal selections. Prizes went to Henry Ah Sam and Judith Ching for the Best Waltz Couple and the Best Be-bop Couple was Charlene and Jimmy Moikeha. Judges were the officers of the Servettes present and their advisor, Dr. Billie Hollingshead.

Queen Napua and King David Reign

Today, May 1, we celebrated our second annual May Day pageant at The Church College of Hawaii. The setting for this pageant was perfect. A perfumy aroma of the many beautiful flowers of the islands added fragrance and color to the scene.

This pageant came to the long-awaited climax with the crowning of the King and Queen. Lovely Napua Kanoho reigned as queen and David Keala as king. Her Majesty Napua was crowned by last year's queen Elizabeth Kaleo.

Cute little Tommy Spurrier, son of Professor and Mrs. Joseph Spurrier, was the crown bearer, and Emilie Kaimi was Her Majesty's lady-in-waiting.

The pageant consisted of princesses representing all the islands of the Hawaiian chain, with their attendants bearing gifts of Aloha for Her Majesty. The princesses for the islands were Princess Charlene Moikeha and attendant Carolyn McDougall, Princess Carol Flores and attendant Odetta Kualaa, Princess Moana Su'a and attendant Eliza Kahananui, Princess Elaine Makaio and attendant Elsie Barauis, Princess Marjory Kauhane and attendant Phyllis Makaiau, Princess Janice Thomas and attendant Clara Loo, Princess Mona Jeanne Rose and attendant Thelma Hiram, and Princess Florence Kamauoha and attendant Dorothy Obiaco.

Students Attend UH Model UN Confab

Representing The Church College of Hawaii at the second annual University of Hawaii Model United Nations meetings were Dave Black, Julina Lung and Laura Lee Pratt. The meetings were held April 12 and 13 in the University gymnasium. The delegation represented the typically neutral country of Sweden. The talk given by Dave Saturday morning was considered of such value that the delegate representing Israel took time from the meeting to congratulate him. Although the Swedish delegation did not help to draft any initial resolutions, they took part in a compromise resolution drawn up by the United States, United Kingdom and India, along with smaller nations.

Personality

Merlene Jeppsen

Ever thought of traveling? Well, here's a gal that really had her dream come true by reaching Hawaii. Of course while still a child at the age of one, she did a bit of traveling from city to city in Utah. This I guess is what set her on a world cruise.

She claims that Logan, Utah, was her home as long as she can remember. At the age of eleven she left her beautiful environment to journey with her family to Panama. When asked if Panama intrigued her, she replied that it was fun and she loved the life there. The weather is more humid but the climate agreed with her. While in Panama, this gal was champ in the bowling and pingpong games.

Since her father was needed elsewhere, she soon found herself in Washington D.C. She spent her last two years in Washington Lee High School and graduated with 779 other students. While there, she was the president of the Washington Stake Jr. Gleaner Organization.

In 1954, this gal and her family were called to go to Paris where she learned a few French words and attended the Sorbonne. Before leaving Europe to come to Hawaii, she and her family traveled through Italy, Spain, Holland, Germany, Switzerland, Austria, England and Belgium.

By now, you have probably guessed who this gal is. She is none other than Merlene Jeppsen, the editor of our Na Hoa Pono. She can be found every night in room E-3 busily working on the annual. Merlene says that the two years here at CCH have been terrific. Her plans for furthering her education are not definite but she will return to Utah, her home state.

Council Notes...

The first General Council meeting of the year was held March 22. The Council meeting, which consists of the Executive and Legislative Councils, was conducted by Bill Montgomery, ASCCH president. Primary business was to set dress standards for members of the student body. Regulations as drawn up by the Council call for shoes and sox to be worn to all classes and assemblies, and abolishment of opih pants and bermuda shorts without bermuda stockings in the same places. The president appointed a committee to study the constitution and suggest revisions. Members of the committee are Eleanor Kaloi, chairman, Elaine Makaio, Jeanette Kochi and Henry Simmons.

In the Legislative Council meeting held on March 15, $300 was appropriated for the Commencement Ball to be sponsored by the Freshman Class. This appropriation leaves approximately $200 in the student body treasury, plus a reserve fund.

FLASH!!!!

Volleyball and softball competition is slated for the afternoon of May 1. Male Frosh and Sophs to contend in softball opener. Females to do likewise in second game. AMS to take on male faculty in last event.

FRIENDLY PERSUASION

Dear Editor:

The last issue of the Ke Ala Ka'i carried in its editorial a message regarding student responsibility. I do not wish to recap the entire editorial in this letter to you; however, I deem it necessary to quote a paragraph from the said message, "Second, the student refuses the responsibility outright".

It is said that when responsibility is ushered your way, you are able to do either one of two things: accept it, knowing you can and will put forth every effort to do good, or reject the calling because you feel incapacitated. I firmly believe that one refusing to take on responsibility is justified in doing so, if it's for the following reasons: 1. It may conflict with studies. 2. It may interfere with other work, and 3. One may not be interested at all. Furthermore, I feel that if you are ever going to undertake anything better make it good, or don't do it at all!

Very truly yours, Irresponsible

Dear Irresponsible:

It behooves me to say that you are justified in taking such a stand concerning responsibility, however, I do not feel that you are entirely correct. True, you have the right to accept or reject a responsibility, but did you know that you have nothing to lose and much to gain when you do accept? You are able to discover what you can do well, and what you cannot do well and to improve on the latter. Your reasons of support were logical and just but, I should like to say this. Everybody has studies, yet research has shown that the students with the most responsibility make the better grades.

In reference to your afore mentioned reasons I should like to take this stand: 1. Study is your responsibility. Why not make responsibility your study, too? It's a good course. 2. Some students are employed part time. For about two hours of each day their time is taken up in employment, yet they manage to do exceptionally well. How about you who are not employed? 3. Broaden your interests, or cross "progression" from your list of desires.

Good luck in your future responsibilities.

The Editor

Another game played on April 11, ended in a tie of 19 points between the joint team and the Alii's. A game was later scheduled to have the play off, but the joint team forfeited their game to the Alii's.
